Adair is dismayed at Nina's desertion and silence. He takes a trip to Japan with a friend named Morrison, who advises him to seek an explanation. He resolves to do so, and returns to meet Hecker arriving from the East with his bride-Nina! She greets Adair pleasantly and without embarrasement. He cannot understand. Nina has brought with her as companion a Mrs. Bland, who is really Mellish's deserted wife. They have an interview in which she tells him of their child's death, and he tells her that he saw Nina marry Adair. She does not believe him. Adair finds the situation impossible and seeks to be transferred. Mellish, however, tells him what he knows and demands $100 to keep quiet. Adair pays him and resolves to stay to protect Nina.
